Hi Rusty,

I was out of town last Thursday so I just saw this e-mail string, but I agree with your response as well.

Hello MJ,

If the applicator knows that cats and other non-targets will have access to an attic, then a bait station will be required. If the applicator believes that an attic is not accessible to children, pets, or non-targets, then a bait station would not be needed.

Please let me know if you have any further questions.

Hello Rusty,
I have a question for you. The second-generation anticoagulant rodenticide products, final risk mitigation decision for 10 rodenticides for professional applicators states that Bait stations are required indoors if exposure to children, pets or non-target animals is possible. So cats and other animals can get into attics, so do we need to put bait in a station when placing in any attic? Please help, no one can give me a straight answer. My office hours are Mon - Fri. 8am - 1:15pm central time. If you need to call me after that try my cell 817-875-9951.
Thank you,
